Another complaint which I heard made by yet another man was that women groups of two or three and whispering hard at each other. "I have never in than a whispered remark. polite society. I confess to having seen some rather strange notices posted up in club halls. One was to the effect that members making use of the club bedrooms were requested not to receive guests in the rooms they occupied. I inquired the reason of this prohibition and I was told that the rule was made in consequence of one member having displayed her trousseau in the room she had engaged, and that a continual stream of visitors kept the club servants engaged in ushering them up from morn till night. CHESAPEAKE BEACH, August 8, 1908. The last month of the season was inaugurated this week with excursions for every day and a schedule covering all the remaining days. All the cottages are occupied and rooms at the hotels must

I belong to four clubs of which I from the bay contributing much toward recuperating the commuters who are fortunate in occupying cottages here for the summer.

Tailors are biting now, and some good catches are reported. Shrimp are used for bait and anglers go out far for deep water, but are well repaid. The heavy storms of July along the Chesapeake coast have likely driven many crabs into the sea, if reports of sea captains are to be accepted. Thousands of them are reported to have been seen by the captain of a steamer in the sea south of Cape Henry. They had most likely been carried out from the bay into the ocean and had not been able to get back into quieter waters. However, there are myriads of crabs to be caught off the big pier here, and there is no diminution of a supply at the eating places. Some went from here down to the county seat, Prince Frederick, Wednesday to attend the leap year ball, held in the town hall that evening. SHADOW PLAYS REVIVED. Older Form Used Images Cut Out of Wood or Leather.

From the Technical World. A little band of enthusiasts, headed by But like many revivals, this lays claim to being a "new movement" in the drama. "Shadow plays" are a product of the far east. Their very early history is difficult to trace. We hear of them first in China-that "barbarian" country whose civilization antedates that of any other country in the world. Japan, too, elas had shadow plays and they are known in the history of India. But in more recent years, they have been commoner in Turkey and Egypt.

Baron von Bernus has taken the shadow play a little more seriously than his contemporaries of France. He has gathered about him a band of serious men and women who have adapted to the uses of their theater some of the dramas of Goethe, who have themselves written plays especially for the "Schattenspielhaus" and who have designed the tableaux which illustrate the progress of the drama.

The methods of the "shadow theater" have been subject to many variations. Some shadow plays have been produced with hying actors whose profiles have been projected on a screen. This form is known in the United States. The archaic form, now revived, uses images cut out of card or wood or leather. In Arabia the shadow figures were of colored leather, through which the light behind threw on the screen which faced the spectator a dull glow like stained glass. Some of the oriental shadow artists share in the production and each tableaux is drawn by one of them, while all the enthusia as join in cutting out the figures and preparing the scenes. The plays produced cover a wide range-from "Don Juan" to the old morality play. Baron von Ber-

Apple Land of the Pacific. From Britannia

Tasmania has long been known as the apple land of the south, but few at home have any real idea of the money that can be made, and is being made, out of apple growing in that island. Last year, for instance, there were many small orchards in the south which returned as much as 1,200 bushels to the acre, and dell, sister of Lord Arundell, and Miss one owner of four acres, who picked over 4,000 bushels of marketable fruit, which he sold at 4s. per bushel, reaped four sisters who live in convents, and as something like £175. MISS HASSAN'S SUCCESS.

Nurse of the Navy. Examination has been finished for the

this city will undoubtedly be appointed. Miss Hassan has served as a nurse in Philadelphia, on the hospital ship Relief and in the government service on the isthmus of Panama. She is graduate of the New Haven (Conn.) Training School of Nurses. It is the purpose of the Navy Depart-ment, under a law recently enacted by Congress, to organize a corps of female nurses for service in various naval hospitals in this country and abroad. How nany nurses will be chosen has not been determined yet, but in all probability fifty or more eventually will be required. The service will be organized practically on the same basis as the army service of female nurses. The women will be employed principally, if not entirely, in hospitals, thus leaving the work of nursing on ships of war to the regular hospital stewards. The employment of female nurses is regarded by the medical authorities of the navy as a great step in advance, as, with competent and efficient nurses in the various naval hospitals, the navy will be admirably equipped to care properly for any medical or surgical case that may be pre-
